BLACK SCREEN
Indigenous stories take centre stage

Black Screen is a FREE celebration of Indigenous film and culture during National Reconciliation Week (27 May to 3 June). While promoting cultural awareness and Indigenous screen culture, Black Screen provides entertainment to communities and brings them together in discussion.

Country Arts SA acknowledges the assistance of Black Screen, an initiative of the National Film & Sound Archive.

Screening at the Coober Pedy Drive In on May 19 will be Minnie Loves Junior (2010, G), Captain of the Team (2010, G), High Tide (2013 G).

Also screening for the first time this year pre-interval is Coming Home – a short film honouring Aboriginal Diggers, recently completed in time for Anzac Day. Commissioned by Country Arts SA, Creative Director Lee-Ann Tjunypa Buckskin worked with Aboriginal cinematographer and filmmaker Allan Collins consulting the community of Raukkan to tell the story of two brothers who set off from there in WW1.

Following the interval will be Mimi (2002, M), Nana (2007, PG), My Brother Vinnie (20016 M) and One Fine Day (2013 classification TBC). All films before interval are rated G so children can attend.
